

Italian Street Food Festival 2019: the greatest festival of the Italian street food is taking place in Berlin

Bruschette with truffle and caciocavallo, fried pizza, “cuoppi” with seafood, shrimp skewers, arancini, pizza “al portafoglio” exactly like in Naples, porchetta, arrosticini, pistachio cannoli, ice cream, bigné... All these specialties and many more will be protagonist of the second edition of the Italian Street Food Festival taking place on June 22nd and 23rd at the Osthafen (Alt Stralau 1-2, 10245 Berlin), wonderful location nearby the river. In 2018 the event has attracted over 8.000 visitors who made it the biggest Italian street food event ever organised in Germany.

The event. The festival will host over 20 stands and food trucks. Some of the most famous Italian realities in Berlin are involved, such as Malafemmena (which, for the occasion, will take to the Osthafen an oven for Neapolitan pizza), Kuchen von Gaia and also another stand moving directly from Frankfurt (La Frisa Fra). All of them are part of the True Italian network founded by Berlino Magazine. Beside food and drinks, the event will also offer the entertainment powered by Radio Banda Larga Berlin, and a dj-set by Musica Matta. The entrance will cost 2€ and will be free for kids under 12. It will be also possible to participate in an Instagram photo contest whose first prize will be a 3-days stay for two people at the Hotel Boutique Palazzo Natoli, Palermo.

The True Italian project. True Italian is a network that aims to preserve authentic Italian restaurants found in Berlin through its brand, as well as a number of other initiatives and events held throughout the year. True Italian is shaped around all of those people representing Italian cuisine who show their passion in spreading the culture of “good eating”, starting from the product selection. At the moment 80 places in Germany are part of the network, most of them in Berlin where the project was born in 2015.
